

Atlanta Cutlery Corporation Announces New Knife Patent

Atlanta Cutlery Corp. introduces its latest patent for a unique back-up weapon for Military, Law Enforcement & Security Personnel

Conyers, GA (PRWEB) November 4, 2009 -- Atlanta Cutlery today announced they have been granted a new Patent by the US Patent and Trademark Office for a unique badge holder with a built-in, back-up weapon/knife. At the request of local law enforcement and GBI criminal investigation and undercover agents, ACC has spent the last two years developing and Patenting this unique knife/badge combo.

The genuine leather badge holder allows you to show your badge properly & securely on your belt or around your neck with the included black chain. Affixed to the back is a fully functional folding knife with 2 1/4" long, 1" wide blade. The entire design is of solid, high grade stainless steel. The knife stays secure until needed and arrives in a flash with the quick, one-hand trigger-style opener. The genuine leather badge holder actually acts to reinforce the grip and the holder fits the hand well. The absolutely unique, patented design is only available from ACC.

"Undercover officers cannot always carry a firearm, but many times still have their badge to identify themselves and this badge holder gives them the edge they need in emergencies," says Robin Chaudhuri, ACC designer on the project. "Purpose, function and confidence, you'll be glad you have it in the field."

ACC's Patent for a Federal/Police/Security force badge holder with a functional back-up weapon built in has been received extremely well and will result in other models being developed in the future, which will continue the innovative product line.
